MANILA (City)—A gunman shot dead a radio commentator early yesterday while he was driving his motorcycle on his way to work, police said.

Fernando Ocho, 45, of 40th St. and Pineda Street in Marikina City, was the sixth radio person killed under President Aquino's watch and the 14th since the first was murdered in 2005, according to the National Union of Journalists of the Philippines (NUJP).

His killing confirmed the killing.

"Mr. Ocho was a standing comedian, who reported on the ground, for which he had been receiving threats to his life," said a NUJP spokesman.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? In territorial disputes, probably the last best weapon you can deploy, especially if you lack an edge.

Malikana seems to be on the verge of using the name game to assert Philippine sovereignty over the Spratly and other islands in the South China Sea.

Malikana holds the view that the name game is a useful tool in territorial disputes.

A CALL TO THE PRESIDENT

This is a call to the President coming from an elderly whose family's business pride has been smeared by the incumbent head of the Department of Interior and Local Government (DILG).

In 1991, the administration of the late President Corason E. Aquino, through then DILG Secretary Rafael Alunan, urged the Filipino Inventor's Society (FIS) to help and work hand-in-hand with the government. FIS accepted and a Memorandum of Agreement, which is still enforceable, was entered into. One of the FIS members who rose to the occasion was my late husband, internationally acclaimed and multi-awarded Filipino inventor Alfredo Moreno Anos, Sr., a two-time World Intellectual Property Organization gold awardee. He devoted his time and energy, saved the government from research and development cost, and personally shouldered the necessary expenses in order to develop the first-ever Filipino Fire Truck, the Anos Fire Truck. Since then, Anos Research Manufacturing (ARM), the entity carrying the Anos Fire Truck, has been manufacturing and innovating brand-new Filipino fire trucks utilizing Filipino ingenuity and Filipino labor, thus, contributing and playing a respectable role in the Philippine fire truck industry and economy.

As a Filipino rightly guided with moral and Christian principles and discipline, ARM develops and innovates its fire trucks purposely to cater to the needs of the Filipinos and taking into consideration the conditions of fire incidents and community terrain in the Philippines. As an inventor, ARM continuously utilizes novel concepts and ideas of fire trucks with intellectual property rights over eleven utility model designs, eight industrial designs, two copyrights and two trademarks. As a manufacturer, ARM produces fire trucks with specifications custom-built to the needs of the procuring entity. As a proud maker of quality fire trucks, ARM extends unparalleled after-sales services with lifetime free service warranty with two manufacturing plants and more than 300 service stations. It is the only fire truck player in the Philippines which provides manufacturer's warranty to each and all major components of fire trucks, like the cab and chassis, the water/foam tank, the fire pump, and the foam system.

ARM has established its place in the local fire truck industry after two decades of hard work and track record based on quality workmanship and integrity. In an instant, however, the name and reputation, which my family has painstakingly built for twenty years, including the name of FIS, which is the society from which ARM belongs, is suddenly periled because of unwarranted public criticisms coming from the highest official of DILG, the same office which made a partnership pact with inventors. Secretary Jesse Robredo made public statements that subsequent procurement of fire trucks by the government shall be imported ones because the locally made fire trucks manufactured by ARM allegedly displayed poor performance and are much expensive. These were made without prior conference.

Let the President and the public know that these statements are unfair as they are baseless. For those delivered to the BFP, the Anos fire trucks were manufactured based on technical specifications required by BFP after approval thereof by DILG. Note that BFP has even issued a certification that ARM has complied with the technical specifications and standards of BFP. In other words, ARM merely complied with the required technical specifications, such that, if said technical specifications produced lesser output, then much higher specifications should have been required from ARM so the latter could comply accordingly and not to put the blame on ARM. It is believed, though, that the technical specifications required from ARM was a product of a thorough study and wide consultations, bearing in mind the suggestions of all stakeholders, the needs of the Filipinos and the fire conditions/terrains in our country.

It has to be stressed that ARM's dealings with the BFP, including its direct contracting mode of procurement with the government as a holder of proprietary rights and the price of its fire trucks, have withstood the watchful eyes and investigations of both Congress and the Office of the Ombudsman. To criticize ARM's fire trucks in public in order to justify the procurement of imported fire trucks is simply revoluting. It is emphasized that ARM has not been officially notified by BFP or DILG of any complaint involving the alleged poor performance of its fire trucks. ARM learned this for the first time from the media. For this, the public has to know that ARM has never refused any complaint for repairs or any request for after sales service. ARM has always been true to its warranties; in fact, ARM even replaces and upgrades major parts for free whenever warranted. Finally, BFP and DILG knew all along that ARM's manufacturing plants are always open for service, inspection and testing.

Secretary Robredo has been pushing for the acquisition of imported fire trucks. With the 6.2 million pesos per unit price he is espousing, which does not find support from the independent assessment of BFP and from the findings of the 14th Congress of the Philippines, and contrary to the actual fair market value now prevailing, bearing in mind the technical specifications required, he may be eyeing for poor quality fire trucks from a foreign country and/or reconditioned imported fire trucks. At any rate, opting for imported fire trucks is an anti-Filipino action which blatantly violates the "Filipino First Policy" enshrined in our fundamental law and related statutes and government issuances such as Article II Section 28, Article XI Section 12, Article XIV Section 30, and Article XIV Section 13 of "The 1987 Constitution", Republic Act No. 9184 otherwise known as "The Government Procurement Reform Act of 2003", Commonwealth Act No. 138 otherwise known as "The Flag Law", the annual "General Appropriations Act", R.A. No. 8293 otherwise known as "The Intellectual Property Code of the Philippines", R.A. No. 7455 otherwise known as "The Inventions and Invention Incentives Act of the Philippines", Book VI, Section 76 of "The Revised Administrative Code of the Philippines", Section 1 of "Administrative Order No. 227" dated May 27, 2008 and Cabinet Action/Decision Memorandum - NEDA dated April 20, 2010. This policy was also made clear by the Honorable Supreme Court in Manila Prince Hotel versus GSH, et. al., G.R. No. 127156, February 3, 1997.

Mr. President, I am an 83-year-old widow and what is left to me in this world is the pride my late husband and my family have cultivated all through the years in establishing our name in the field of the Philippine fire truck industry. It brings too much pain to an old woman to have this pride shattered. I have no political means to stand against a cabinet secretary. What I have by my side, though, are ARM's vision of quality service, our national laws, the Filipino Inventors Society, a free speech to hear my elderly voice, and with God's grace, a President to protect me and the local fire truck industry.

Lastly, it is both a legal and moral obligation to direct the government fire truck procurement thrust in the right direction where Filipinos, Filipino inventors and Philippine goods are preferred and not prejudiced.

Thank you very much.

'Honesty its own reward'

By Julie M. Rando

TWO PHILIPPINE Air Lines (PAL) employees, Januson Lacsana and Albert Republica, have been honored by management after they turned over a bag containing more expensive accessories they found on a baggage carousel last month.

Januson Lacsana and Albert Republica said the saying "Honesty is the best policy" never occurred to them.

"Really, I have a dignity at home, even if it's cheap. The suitcase we found was not even so large," said Lacsana, 36, who with Republica works in Male Terminal 3.

The two, who happen to be good friends, waited for the owner to come around looking for the bag which was dangling from the ceiling handle.

After some time had passed and still no one had come by to claim it, Republica and Lacsana brought the bag to the airport lost and found desk.

The bag, which had the name 'Lacsana' on it, held a shiny silver single-belt collar.

(GUE) camera and a video camera.

"I was the bag contained a camera because it had many machines on it, but we don't think it would have two cameras inside," Republica said, with two cameras inside.

Before the three years, they said the bag was worth about 100,000 pesos. The cheapest video camera in the market cost around 500,000, while GUE's cost from 100,000 to 150,000.

For those losing the two, who are not named employees, with personal plaques of recognition has been by the state management.

The bag contained a camera and the address of the owner which made it easy to track down.

It turned out the bag was a University of the Philippines professor who had left the bag behind that early morning of May 30.

"The Male 3 management just told us the owner had claimed it. We don't mind not losing our job, but we are not getting a reward," Lacsana said.

"I believe in honesty. I was brought up to remember I shouldn't keep things which don't belong to me," he added.

Lacsana said he would always remain the same, more honest, adding: "We tend to have good habits from how we have things happen."

For the two, the plaques of recognition were reward enough.

"We keep in the living room, in a frame. I feel good whenever I pass by it. It's happy that I did something right," Republica said.

WE STAND BY THE TRUTH

Allegation is that the former PCSD Board of Directors recently made against the immediate past Board are not true.

In the history of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO), it was during the term of the former PCSD Board of Directors, when PCSO sales revenues rose to their highest level ever—more than P10 billion. In the individual Medical Assistance Program (MAP) alone, since it started in 1983, PCSO has served more than 580,000 indigent patients, less than 1% of those who are served during the administration of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo.

Not true: The PCSO was bankrupt at the end of the Arroyo administration.
The truth is on June 28, 2010 at 4:00 PM, at the last meeting of the outgoing Board, PCSO had in the bank P3,268,094,345.26 dollars including US$ 5,944.7 million. PCSO assets included 1.1 hectares of prime land in San Marcelino, Manila valued at almost P10 billion, land in Alibon, Iloilo and Marikina, computers, Management Information Systems equipment, and a vast thermal paper print shop inventory among others.

The truth is accounts payable to hospitals was around P10 billion. However, it was not paid because the Commission on Audit (COA) did not allow payments for unpaid bills or lacking documents (Bills were all of the payables were received during the past six months before the end).

Not true: Charity funds were used for Public Relations (PR).
The truth is PR and some of the 10% Operations Fund mandated by the PCSO-Charity Medical Assistance Act and Treasury 20% OFPI Fund were proven effective in attracting the public to get charity as PCSO giving products. This is borne out by the consistently high sales revenue at the time of the immediate past Board.

The truth is a 30% of sales revenue allocated for Charity Fund was contrary to intent used for any expense other than for charity.

Not true: Funds for charity, operations, and prizes are lumped together in one expense account.
The truth is Charity Fund, Operations Fund, and Prize Fund are separate accounts, each with separate set of accounting books.

The truth is the immediate past General Manager signed the PCSO Treasury Department to submit a daily report on the status of fund in the cash position of PCSO.

The truth is the Commission on Audit (COA) regularly conducted spot cash audit in the system of PCSO departments.

Not true: Anonymous contract with Philippine Gaming Management Corporation (PGMC) on information.

The truth is the current agreement is the most favorable option for PCSO. Past changes in technology speeds up machine transactions. The past providers of machine machines will be highly expensive for PCSO.

The truth is the initial contract was signed at the time when the US dollar peso exchange rate was $1: P60.25 whereas, the succeeding contract was signed when the exchange rate was $1: P65.00+. In addition, the succeeding contract provided for new P600 billion investment by PGMC in modern gaming machines, and the maintenance and speed up of integration of telecommunications systems that will result in faster opening of many new slots outside that will in turn result to increase in sales revenue.

The truth is PCSO did not spend a single centavo to realize improvements to help increase revenues and increase in sales.

The truth is the PCSO-PCMC contract was subjected to almost two years of rigorous legal study and scrutiny by the Office of the Government Corporate Counsel (OGCC), Most Recent Final Case, and the Independent Auditor of the Philippines (IAP) at National Bureau of Investigation (NBI).

Not true: World Lottery Company (WLC) is not involved.

The truth is PCSO regularly does business with the world lottery company having power to bid the right to manage to ensure that STL continues to produce an original gaming product of PCSO.

The truth is even at its experimental stage managed by the immediate past Board of Directors, STL, by May 30 (2010) generated more than P10 billion. In comparison, STL only generated around P10 million when it was first launched and implemented.

Not true: Limitation of charity assistance in the 2010/11 fiscal year was 20%.

The truth is to increase the impact of assistance to every beneficiary, PCSO charity desks restrict to give P10,000 to each beneficiary who came to the Head Office desks at 20 PCSO Dealer Offices. Restricted assistance of more than P10,000 was allowed in the General Manager's Office, if more than P10,000, to the Chairman's Office, and if more than P10 million, in the Board of Directors. An average assistance of P10,000 was given per patient in 2009-2010. Total assistance directly provided in the same period was P10.74 billion.

Not true: Exemption in lotto daily results is a.

The truth is regular exemption was required. Exemptions charged on regular exemption and non exemption.

The truth is irregular exemption was a basis for collection of contract network sales.

Not true: Instant expense claims are used to bill for PCSO and is signed the PCSO Chairman.

The truth is instant expense claims are used to bill for PCSO and is signed the PCSO Chairman.

Not true: Integrity of 20 years contract between Agreement with TMM-Group at Companies P/L Limited, an Australian firm.

The truth is the Joint Venture Agreement with TMM was subjected to all the necessary legal processes and provisions, including the 20 years term in the Republic of the Philippines.

The truth is the PCSO-TMM contract is subject to certain specific provisions, to be monitored by independent auditors, and does not prohibit the dissolution of the corporation if its actions are found unfavorable to PCSO.

The truth is the PCSO-TMM contract provides that PCSO will not be held liable for any primary obligation in case the joint venture fails.

The immediate past Board of Directors, when we started our work, came upon a surprising system that our PCSO for more than 40 years. We firmly believed that the PCSO operational systems were developed better. We gradually dismantled the system, and made it more portable to the current needs of institutions and communities that PCSO serves. We intensively aimed at bringing PCSO up to par with notable local and international charity institutions.

A holistic and streamlined approach was adopted to make service to poor Filipinos more effective and immediate — this we believe is the real essence of the existence of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office.

Thank you for your attentiveness to us who speak the truth.

Pocket protests mark opening of college classes

DAED has announced protests against the opening of classes for colleges and state universities nationwide as youth groups on campus stage new what they see as an alternative crisis worse than the previous administration.

"The situation is more now than during the terms of former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo," Christian Union, secretary general of national youth group members, said.

While classes began, Natividad said million youth were not in school, mainly because they cannot afford the rising fee structure.

Leading a rally of around 30 placard-carrying students in front of the Commission on Higher Education (CHED) offices on Monday morning, Natividad said they got alerted by the national government for education department from 10 percent of the national budget in 2010 to 11 percent under the terms of President Aquino.

"The new school fee list by the budget cuts on the youth who depend solely on the national government for their college education, this what do you expect them to do? I believe now there's more than last year's income," Natividad said.

Christian Union, previously known as Christian Union of the Philippines, University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City, and Philippine National University.

As one of the youth, Guter Natividad, a 17-year-old high school graduate, cannot afford the tuition even at the state-run Quezon City National University. Joining the protests, Natividad said he took the entrance exam at QCNU in May but he was discouraged from attending the school upon learning that he needed to pay P4,000, including transportation fees for the semester.

"We just could not afford it even in good times, so I quit it," Natividad said. He was hoping to take a free-year information technology course after graduating from Laguna Statewide High School in Quezon City.

The irregular job of his parents as a continuing professional and an auditing instructor made it difficult for Natividad to be able to make ends meet, he said.

Natividad said the likes of Senate have members to pay for more state education, the public schools are no longer accessible to them.

As the country's largest public university, Ateneo de Manila University of the Philippines, in College of Technology has the highest tuition at P20,000 per year, the said Ateneo de Manila said could cost a student P4,000.

According to CHED, more than 100 private colleges and universities are expected to raise tuition by an average of 10 percent this year.

DND exec tagged by Rabusa in plunder goes on leave

A DEPARTMENT of National Defense (DND) official has gone on leave after being implicated in the amended plunder complaint filed in the Department of Justice last week by former military budget chief George Rabusa.

Assistant Secretary Ernesto Banao asked to go on an indefinite leave of absence without pay even before he could read Rabusa's 175-page complaint considering the "very serious" position that he holds.

Banao, a retired Army general, is the defense assistant secretary for correspondence. He was then the first defense events committee.

Defense Secretary Voltaire Comandante, a former Army general himself, accepted Banao's offer last Friday, a DND spokesman said.

"I think it's for the good of our force as he can attend to the case," defense official said.

However, any decision on his leave, especially because he holds very sensitive positions, "indiscreetly" Eduardo Banao said.

He said Assistant Secretary Francisco Manalo for acquisitions, maintenance and logistics may replace Banao as assistant secretary for correspondence.

When interviewed last Thursday, Banao said he was thinking of resigning to make an indefinite leave of absence.

"I believe that goodness dictates that I should not continue with my functions because of the very serious case filed against me and give back that I'm holding a very position," he said.

He denied Rabusa's charge that he had misused P720 million when he was a military budget officer under the defense office of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Chief of Staff for Correspondence from 1986 to 1992.

Banao was appointed DND assistant secretary in August 2009, six months after he retired from the military service.

However, a former assistant cabinet officer, several military budget officers from 2000 to 2002, excluded Banao and four other persons in his amended plunder complaint.

PDEA, jail bureau partner to fight drugs in prison

IN THE wake of reports of illicit drug activities behind bars, the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) announced on Sunday the renewal of its partnership with the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology (BJMP) to curb the drug trade inside prisons.

BJMP Director General Undersecretary Jose S. Calatagan Jr. and BJMP Director Rosendo M. III signed on Friday a memorandum of agreement to continue the collaboration for the new agencies.

"The new agreement intends to address the pervasiveness of illegal drug activities perpetrated by drug lords already in jails," PDEA said in a statement.

Under the previous agreement, the new BJMP "shall be in full force for as long as there is a continuous between PDEA and BJMP to continue the agreement and until such time that one or both parties decide to terminate the MOA," Calatagan said.

The previous three-year MOA between PDEA and BJMP expired in April.

Under the MOA, the PDEA and BJMP will share intelligence and pursue joint investigations efforts in the conduct of ongoing operations to reduce illicit drug production.

BJMP, as the other lead, is authorized to conduct surprise inspections within jail premises in coordination with officials of PDEA.

The BJMP Bureau assures the agency that, for at least drug supply and distribution, it is the BJMP's responsibility to ensure that the BJMP is able to do so in accordance with the law.

As for the BJMP, Assistant Secretary Solita de Luna revealed that drug activities were flourishing in the four BJMP Prison Units (BPU), which is under the control of the Bureau of Corrections, not the BJMP.

Citing information that sources, she also said that some drug smugglers in the BJMP "had been looking for officials in the PDEA" but she said that the BJMP had made arrangements to do drug investigations.

E. coli toll hits 35; rise in deaths feared

BERLIN—The death toll from a killer bug outbreak centered on Germany rose to 35 on Sunday as health officials said it was the worst of its kind on record and the government feared more people could die.

"More fatalities cannot be ruled out, possibly though it is in my" health Minister Jens Beutler said the toll on Sunday newspaper, while adding that the number of new cases was declining.

"The continuing fall in the number of new infections gives grounds for optimism. But that does not rule out more cases of EHEC, especially in the next few days," he said.

The Robert Koch Institute (RKI), Germany's national disease agency, on Sunday said that the death toll had risen to 35, but that the rate of new infections had continued to decline.

"We do not expect a fresh rise in cases," RKI spokeswoman Susanne Schneider said. "The outbreak is receding." All but one of the 35 deaths from EHEC poisoning have been in Germany, with the other being a woman in Sweden who had recently traveled to Germany.

Some 5,200 people have died from EHEC in 14 European countries plus the United States and Canada, according to the World Health Organization. All but one case was in people from a risk had risen in Germany.

Many are seriously ill with bloody diarrhea and potentially life-threatening conditions such as hemolytic uremic syndrome (HUS), a serious kidney ailment.

The RKI said Saturday that 812 people had 18,573 of these in Germany.

"The wave of EHEC and hemolytic uremic syndrome cases in Germany is the most significant recorded in the world in data," said Volk Beutler, spokesman for the Robert Institute for Risk Assessment (RiA).

In Germany, some 1.66 percent have had kidney damage that they need an organ transplant or will require dialysis treatment.

After several hours of news coverage, German authorities on Friday said they had identified the source as being vegetable sprouts.

from an organic farm in Lower Saxony, northern Germany.

The farm has harvested and all its products marketed. The firm ordered sprouts from a number of producers in the region, including those in the Netherlands, France, Belgium, Austria and Italy.

Authorities have said though that the farm in the northern village of Borsdorf had done nothing wrong, with United Nations, Low or having agricultural minister, saying it had "high hygiene standards."

With German authorities only have had fresh sprouting sprouts, parties have in northern Germany, to avoid associated tomatoes, cucumbers and lettuce, the state has been forced to buy in some hundreds of millions of euros of sprouts.

The RKI said it was monitoring and cutting new vegetable sprouts.

Previously, it had said more than 100 producers after Germany tested and in many cases found no more growth there.

The European Commission has of about 35 million euros (500 million) in losses affected across Europe.

Losses also affected the impact of all fresh vegetables from the whole of Europe, including France, Spain, Morocco and Italy, at a cost of about 35 million euros (500 million) in losses affected across Europe.

The average for the 364-day bill was 71.4 basis points lower than the prevailing level bid in the Philippine Bond and Exchange Corp., which was 3.625 percent.

The BFC awarded the full amount of P4 billion in just four bids.

National Treasurer Roberto O. Tan said the auction results showed that investors were still optimistic about the country's credit rating. INQUIRER

Lufthansa bets big on Philippine aircraft servicing

A HANGAR the size of two football pitches is being built in a Manila suburb as the Philippine Airline to become one of the world's largest air cargo hubs for the Airbus A380, the world's largest commercial jet.

Lufthansa Technik Philippines is building the $10-million hangar, or shed, at the airport, to accommodate the same model of larger aircraft, and to also act as a hub for the world's largest commercial jet.

"What we're going to see is an increase in the average size of aircraft," he told AFP during a recent interview, adding that the industry overall may see an opening after a difficult period.

The German firm hopes to work in one of the small group of airports that have made the list of airlines for the 27th Asia Infrastructure for Asia-Pacific (AIP) award.

Only four other worldwide can currently service the massive jet, which has a wing span of nearly 80 meters (262 feet).

"The Airbus A380 is a very large aircraft... but the new hangar will be large enough to accommodate the largest aircraft in the world," Wimmer told AFP.

It is to be completed early next year, the new facility adds up Lufthansa's capital investment in the Philippines to about $130 million, he added.

The new business of Lufthansa's Philippines unit is a heavy maintenance.

"After some very difficult years in 2009 and 2010, we certainly see signs of an upturn," Wimmer told AFP. "We're actually seeing the average growth worldwide in the Middle East and Asia."

Overall, maintenance accounts for up to 12 percent of airline operating costs, and the local unit, the largest majority-owned Lufthansa unit outside Germany, saw a 10 percent increase of about $100 million a year, said Wimmer.

But the 2,700 strong workforce—almost all of whom are Filipino—is what makes the firm stand out, Wimmer told AFP.

"To attract maintenance you will always

The best calorie-burning cardio exercises for rainy days

By Mitch Felpel/Philippines
Contributor

BRANCH SESSION has come to an end. For some, it can be harder to get moving, to run on a treadmill, to use the elliptical machine, or to join fitness classes in the gym during rainy season.

It might also be harder for you to pursue your outdoor activities such as running, walking or cycling.

In fact, there are still many physical activities you can do at home while burning the same or even more calories than your usual outdoor workouts.

Here are the top five challenging activities indoor workouters you can do in your home on rainy days to control your weight, and will maintain or improve your fitness level.

But you still need to consider your weight, exercise intensity, and avoid heart rate to accurately determine the total calories burned (the heavier you are, the higher your heart rate is, the more calories you burn).

Hoop

Calories burned: 210 calories in 30 minutes, according to the study below.

Equipment needed: Hula hoop

According to a recent news release from the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM), "hooping" is equivalent to the same amount of calories burned in walking 4 to 4.5 miles per hour (5.4-7.3 km per hour), though energy cost to control one's body weight.

This exercise has also been considered a popular group exercise class at the gym.

If you are getting bored using the treadmill or can't take a walk, hooping might work for you. Aside from burning more calories, you also get to work on your balance, especially your core and core muscles, according to the researchers.

Shadow boxing

Calories burned: 200-300 calories (30 minutes)

Equipment needed: Mirror

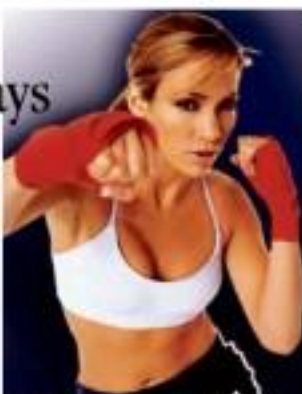

If you're used to joining cardio kickboxing classes at a gym, experienced boxing, at a gym or home, you can still do the same moves at home before the mirror to successfully watch your form.

You can burn enough calories at a 30-minute shadowboxing workout by alternating and combining different types of punches and kicks and imagining that there's an actual opponent in front of you.

Can't go outdoors? Grab a hula hoop, shadowbox, jump-rope or follow a high-intensity training video

JUMPING ROPE

www.inquirer.com

GREAT PREVIEW

Keep your feet moving and bouncing to maintain a steady heart rate. You can start with basic boxing moves like the jumping jacks, jabs and shuffles. Then to start up a high-intensity shadow boxing routine, start with basic kicks on each leg, like knee kicks, side kicks, back kicks and round house kicks, followed by 15-20 sets of jabs, crosses, hooks and uppercuts on each side. Then combine moves, step the speed, and increase the intensity until you reach your target distance or calorie burn.

Jump rope

Calories burned: 250-400 calories (30 minutes)

Equipment needed: Jumping rope

The New York Times just reported using jumping rope as a high-calorie burning exercise. According to a New York Times interview with Edward Jackowski, owner of a Bronx center in New York City that allows jumping rope exercise to last, just 10 minutes of jumping rope at 100 turns per minute is equivalent to 30 minutes of running (at a speed index per hour 5.6-11.2 km per hour).

Just before the proper jumping technique, where you step high on your toes and do not jump more than six inches off the floor.

Although this high-intensity exercise can make you burn more calories, you might have a hard time maintaining a steady heart rate because of the high-intensity pace caused by jumping, especially if you are just a beginner.

It's still better to combine this exercise with light sets of cardio moves like marching in place or light jog in place during recovery breaks to regulate your heart rate.

You can alternate your session of jumping rope with one to two minutes of light cardio moves and a minute of body weight resistance exercise like push-ups or sit-ups.

As you progress and become stronger, you can increase the duration of the jumping rope set.

High-intensity interval training

Unlike bridgework and dentures, dental implants can last a lifetime

With the days when parents and children had to deal with ill-fitting dentures or bridgework and seeking artificial false teeth is a given of years. This Father's Day, why not consider a unique and lasting gift for the man of the house with one of dental implants?

According to Dr. Hester W. Mansel of Cherry Jacobsen Medical and Dental Center, "While dentures may have been the popular solution to tooth loss in the past, the newer and more lasting solution is much less involved implants."

A dental implant is a small metal post that is placed into the jawbone and fused to the bone.

Dental implants are more durable, look more natural, are easy to clean, and can prevent further bone loss and gum tissue shrinkage.

With conventional bridgework, however, implants work best to the missing gap must be replaced every 10-15 years, but dental implants usually last a lifetime with proper care.

According to the American Academy of Periodontology, dental implants allow patients to speak and eat with confidence and confidence. Patients feel more secure with dental implants and are spared the messy and embarrassing risks and troubles of dentures.

The best calorie-burning cardio . . .

From 10 to 15 minutes.

Training, plyometric exercises or high-intensity interval sports like squats, you can try a different form of high-intensity interval indoor workout like the "Tonsure" exercise video, created by Sharon L. also known for the 10-minute workout.

I have already watched and tried some of the "Tonsure" exercise that can really increase your heart rate, such that you can't breathe some more for long. In the short period can still make you burn more calories because your heart rate is still up and going.

Cardio exercises are more fun, jumps, hops, skips, squats, lunges and kicks, and mostly with upper body moves.

If you are planning to try the workout, make sure you are doing the program for 10 minutes, you can always modify the intensity by shortening the duration of the high-intensity period by choosing the interval moves or by increasing the rest periods.

New drug helps Pinoys battle hypertension

TOP GENETIC medicines provider Pharms Health-Corp steps up its drive to help Filipinos battle hypertension with the launch of its newest drug, Hydrex/Isosorbide or HYDREX.

HYDREX is a water pill that helps prevent the body from absorbing too much salt, which can cause fluid retention. This function is instrumental in the treatment of hypertension, as it helps decrease blood pressure by promoting diuresis or to excrete in urination.

"Pharms has always taken an active part in the 'Philippine' health against hypertension," said Pharms Health-Corp president and chief executive officer Dana Manalo Aguilera.

"With the launch of HYDREX, we are proud to offer a new medicine, we hope to give Filipinos access to a wider range of high-quality and affordable medications to help them manage hypertension."

HYDREX provides the first line of defense for mild and uncomplicated hypertension.

Studies showed that blood pressure has been proven to decline in reducing blood pressure control, while enhancing the anti-hypertensive effects of other drugs.

Hypertension was also the basis of our 'Prevent hypertension in mind and body' (Pharms Health-Corp) as it is recommended as an initial drug for mild, uncomplicated hypertension, as well as an add-on drug for stage 2 hypertension.

Most importantly, Pharms has been found to be more affordable compared with other brands of anti-hypertensives. It is priced lower by almost 50 percent, compared with brand-name hypertension drugs in the market today.

Ask your doctor now how Pharms' HYDREX can help you manage your hypertension more effectively.

Concert kicks off bid for Palawan river to be named a world wonder

By Tina Arango-Quintas

WHEN it comes to the campaign to make the Puerto Palawan Underground River one of the New 7 Wonders of Nature, there are no better natural assets, and a common aspiration to go together and achieve a worthy goal.

This was clear tonight last week when Palawan performing artists from five TV stations banded together at the Quezon Monument Circle for Tanya Pineda's concert. The event featured a musical performance by singer-songwriter Maki Calapuyan to encourage more Filipinos to support the bid of Our Palawan Underground River to join the short list of seven world wonders.

The live concert consisted of over 5,000 fans, including many coming from as far as Toronto, Montreal, Chicago, Hawaii, Oahu, Manila, San Francisco, Hong Kong, Australia, India, Canada, Calapuyan said the concert was a big step forward in the campaign to support the bid for Puerto Palawan Underground River to be named a world wonder.

Significant stake

Both sides have a significant stake in the campaign to protect the environment and promote sustainable development. The Palawan Underground River is one of the world's greatest natural wonders, and its protection is a top priority for the Palawan government and the Palawan people.

"I just hope from the concert, it's getting the public to get their support," Calapuyan said.
